The Adventure of the New York Snowman

By Hannah

The snowman abandons home to fulfill his lifelong dream to become a Rockette. He has always wanted to walk on to that stage and hear the applause of the crowd. Radio City is the place where dreams come true for the snowman. Sadly, the snowman has no legs to walk the walk or kick the kick. The snowman must leave.

He walks down the lonely streets of New York. All of the sudden the snowman's slush bumps into a building. The snowman looks up to see the wax museum, where all his wax peeps hang out. He has a tea party with Hannah Montana, sings with Lady GaGa and solves the world's problems with Oprah. Now his night is starting to rock.

The snowman takes his adventure of seeing the best play in America. (According to me,) Wicked. This play has flying monkeys and humor. The snowman came out of the theatre laughing his snow off. His night was pretty good, besides his dreams being crushed.

He was still amazed by the performance of Wicked. The snowman trots into Toys R Us to ride the super Ferris wheel. Uhhh-Ohhh!! He sat in the worst seat of the Ferris wheel. ET, the statue, sat next to him with his eyes wide open. This made the snowman very uncomfortable. It even made him snow a little.

He went back to the lonely streets. But the snowman was determined to finish his awesome night. The snowman began to call every snowman and snowwoman he knew.

Snow-people met up at Times Square. The music played and snow-people began to move on the streets with their canes tapping. The block was a rocking. The snowman declared awesomeness.

Everything was going well. All the sudden there was a sound and everyone turned to see. There he was, the music man of his generation. JUSTIN BIEBER!!! All the snowwomen went wild for him. They ran to him, they thought he was magical. They squeezed him, they hugged him, and they kissed him.

The music began to die down, the lights began to fade, as the sun rose. All the snowmen retreated back to their home wearing mile long frowns.

Our snowman returns to Radio City Music Hall and waits for his next big break!
